

Giuseppe Garibaldi and the passion for agriculture
Garibaldi Compendium of Caprera – La Maddalena
Friday, August 18th, 2017, from 8:00 to 11:00 p.m.

Armed by books to create the business of his life. The rooms of Giuseppe Garibaldi, general agronomist's library are open. From a specialized reading regarding botanicals and agronomy, to the creation of a genuine agricultural business. The Sardinian Museums Organization, on Friday, August 18th, 2017 at 8:00 p.m., in the mill at the Garibaldi Compendium of Caprera, which for the occasion will stay open until 11:00 p.m., inaugurates a temporary display with the title of “Giuseppe Garibaldi and the passion for agriculture”.

For the event, the five original books that sparked and enlarged Garibaldi's passion for farming will be on display. Through the knowledge gained during his trips around the world and specialized letters, the general started a forward-thinking agricultural business that used new techniques, which were then personally experimented upon and written about in an “agricultural notebook”.