

The representation of grapes and wine, a sublime derivative, in paintings from the collection

National Pinacoteca of Sassari

Sunday, September 10th, 2017 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

September is the month of the grape harvest. How has wine production changed over the centuries? On Sunday, September 10th, 2017 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., with the extended opening of the exhibits, the National Pinacoteca of Sassari will enlarge its cultural selection with “The representation of grapes and wine, a sublime derivative, in paintings from the collection”. In order to celebrate activities tied to harvesting and working with grapes, illustrative slides will be on display showing the significance of this fruit in ancient paintings from the permanent collection. This will help get in touch with the artworks demonstrating how wine production has evolved over time.
